1. Low-level members of the Communist Party of Ecuador state that the financial condition of the Party is critical, and that at every cell meeting leaders plead for more contributions to the Party.
2. In an effort to stimulate the raising of funds in the Guayaquil area, Enrique Iriarte Baquerizo, Secretary of Finance of the Guayaquil Local Committee, issued a confidential report in early January 1949 which showed the amount of money contributed by Party cells during the period October-December 1948. This report showed that only about half of the Guayaquil cells contributed to the Party during the specified time and that these fell far below the quota set by Party statutes.
